

Exploring Your Options?

Let's talk. No commitment required.

Choosing a senior living community is a deeply personal journey. It's our mission to help you and your family put one foot in front of the other on this journey — no matter how long it takes. Regardless of whether Americare Assisted Living is the right fit, we're here to help.

You may be ready to make the move or just proactively exploring your options. Our senior living advisors are always ready to start a conversation. The following questions may help during this process.

1. Why does assisted living make better sense than what I'm doing right now, or any other option I'm considering?

We never assume we're the right answer for anyone. We help seniors take an honest look at their living situation to determine what's working — and what's not. We call it discovery. And all options are on the table, including other services and providers. Remember, we want to help you find the right solution for your personal situation.

What changes have you seen to make you consider assisted living?

When did these changes begin?

What is your family doing right now to support care in the home?

When things are going well, what does it look like?

When things aren't going well, what starts happening?

How do you know that it is time to consider an alternative to living at home?

2. Who will be part of this decision?

It is important for families to understand who will be part of the decision and that it needs to make sense for the senior — from their perspective. We often help facilitate even the most sensitive conversations, to ensure everyone is heard.

Are you making this decision for yourself?

If so, is there anyone else you will consult for their opinion?

Are you making this decision on behalf of a family member?

Is this family member aware that you are looking at assisted living options?

Are you worried about having a conversation with your loved one about assisted living?

How would they react if they knew?

Do you need help initiating the conversation?
